Portfolio Update

Equity markets were flat over the month. Optimism about robust U.S. economic data and the policy measures of monetary and governmental authorities was offset by persistent concerns about the indebtedness of many developed economies, and about the eurozone sovereign crisis in particular.

In December, the Portfolio was negatively impacted by security selection attributable primarily to adverse stock selection among oil and gas companies, and to the weakness of gold-related mining stocks against the backdrop of a weaker gold price. The portfolio adviser continues to believe that the perspective afforded by their global thematic approach should allow them to take advantage of evolving opportunities in equity markets.
